

Help clients make saving for college straightforward

Our seven college target date funds were designed to address the key challenges of saving for the rising cost of education. A single investment provides diversification and a glide path that can be matched to each client's investing time horizon, making saving for education easier than ever.

"The College Target Date Series funds were constructed with three key goals in mind. The first, to grow investors' money. Second, to help preserve their investments as the beneficiary gets closer to enrollment. And lastly, to provide consistent results through low volatility investments."

Target Date Solutions Committee

Our target date funds are monitored by the Target Date Solutions Committee, a seasoned group of investment professionals. They use a rigorous process to determine the glide path for the series and the combinations of American Funds in each fund of funds.

American Funds College Target Date Series glide path

Over time, each target date fund's asset allocation will change to align with the remaining number of years before college enrollment. Early on, each target date fund invests in growth-oriented funds to give the beneficiary meaningful equity exposure. This allocation will shift, and a fund will hold a greater portion of equity-income and balanced funds to continue to provide equity exposure but help dampen volatility. Eventually, a greater portion of the fund's assets will be invested in fixed income, equity-income and balanced funds as it nears its target date.

The target allocations shown are as of December 31, 2023, and are subject to the oversight committee's discretion. The investment adviser anticipates assets will be invested within a range that deviates no more than 10% above or below the allocations shown in the prospectus. Underlying funds may be added or removed during the year. Visit capitalgroup.com for current allocations.

Because 18 of the 25 underlying funds currently in the series have at least a 25-year track record, our investment professionals were able to conduct extensive "back-testing" to see how the funds might react to different market conditions. From this foundation, as a target date fund moves toward and into college enrollment, it seeks to achieve a balance of total return and preservation that is appropriate for each phase of the glide path.

The target date is the year that corresponds roughly to the year in which the beneficiary is expected to begin taking withdrawals. Investment professionals gradually adjust the portfolio over time so that it becomes more preservation-oriented. The allocation strategy does not guarantee that investors' education savings goals will be met. Investors and their financial professionals should periodically evaluate the investment to determine whether it continues to meet their needs.

Depending on your state of residence, there may be an in-state plan that provides state tax and other state benefits, such as financial aid, scholarship funds and protection from creditors, not available through CollegeAmerica. Before investing in any state's 529 plan, investors should consult a tax advisor.

Investors should carefully consider investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses. This and other important information is contained in the fund prospectuses, summary prospectuses and the CollegeAmerica Program Description, which can be obtained from a financial professional and should be read carefully before investing. CollegeAmerica is distributed by American Funds Distributors, Inc. and sold through unaffiliated intermediaries.

Allocations may not achieve investment objectives. The portfolios' risks are related to the risks of the underlying funds as described herein, in proportion to their allocations.

Investing outside the United States involves risks, such as currency fluctuations, periods of illiquidity and price volatility, as more fully described in the funds' prospectuses. These risks may be heightened in connection with investments in developing countries. Lower rated bonds are subject to greater fluctuations in value and risk of loss of income and principal than are higher rated bonds. The return of principal for bond funds and for funds with significant underlying bond holdings is not guaranteed. Fund shares are subject to the same interest rate, inflation and credit risks associated with the underlying bond holdings. Investments in mortgage-related securities involve additional risks, such as prepayment risk, as more fully described in the prospectus. Fund shares of U.S. Government Securities Fund are not guaranteed by the U.S. government.
